

Powers! Unlimited Powers!

Steven Silverman, 2016

1. It's not "Darth," but one person with this title fell to his death in the Theed power generator, while another person who held this title inspired a glowing Lucius Malfoy quote in the Daily Prophet. Several people with this title were killed while on Malachor, while another used power from holding this title to grant extended privileges to a select few students. Some people with this title had (*) double-bladed, circular-hilted lightsabers that they hilariously used as personal helicopters, while another was stripped of this title and subsequently chased from Hogwarts by Peeves, who had stolen Professor McGonagall's walking stick. For 10 points, identify this title given to Force-sensitive, Imperial, Jedi hunters, as well as a Hogwarts professor who used it to implement numerous overbearing "Educational Decrees."

ANSWER: Inquisitor [accept (Hogwarts) High Inquisitor; accept Grand Inquisitor; accept Imperial Inquisitor]

2. A predator named Pateesa, or "friend" in its owner's native language, was indirectly killed by this character. In one appearance, this character is attacked by a dianoga and nearly drowns. This character first arrives at his childhood home on an eopie, (*) an animal earlier used to transport his father to a sporting event, accompanied by a man who once rode a varactyl on Utapau. This Force-sensitive human was once described as "strong enough to pull the ears off a gundark." For 10 points, name this Jedi who killed a wampa shortly after it had fatally slashed his tauntaun and used to "bull's-eye womp rats" in his T-16 back home.

ANSWER: Luke Skywalker [prompt on "Skywalker"]

3. These soldiers often acted as snipers, but had a reputation as elitists who couldn't get along well with other troops. The Republic predecessors of these soldiers were led by Commander Gree and saw action at the battle of Kashyyyk, and one of them tried unsuccessfully to assassinate Master Yoda. During that mission, they wore (*) light green, camouflage armor. The equipment sacrifices made in favor of mobility for these troops notably rendered them susceptible to being seriously hurt by getting hit with wood. For 10 points, name this type of Imperial troop equipped with lighter armor, special helmets, and speeder bikes, several of which notably guarded the rear entrance to the shield bunker on the forest moon of Endor.

ANSWER: (clone) scout troopers

4. He's not Luke Skywalker, but he once used a Jedi Mind Trick to get past some Gamorrean Guards. Obi-Wan Kenobi searched for him for years, through wretched hives of scum and villainy and "many other places of equally tortured syntax." He's not R2-D2, but he once served drinks for Jabba the Hutt, and used his powers to prevent a drink being spilled after he was bumped into by Boba Fett. After being picked up by a (*) Sandcrawler, this character had a vision which prompted him to use another Mind Trick, this time on Owen Lars. However, another vision—of the future if he, rather than another like him—led him to cause a small internal explosion, leading Luke to believe he had a bad motivator. For 10 points, name this force-sensitive droid with red paint, who was almost purchased along with C-3PO at the very beginning of A New Hope.

ANSWER: Skippy the Jedi Droid [accept R5-D4]

5. This vessel was able to destroy a fleet led by Plo Koon near the Abregado system. A command of "energize plasma rotors" precedes the firing of this vessel's main weapon, during which battle droids cower near a firing tube much like crewmen operating the Death Star's superlaser. A cry of "Ha! This is too easy!" follows the disabling of several (*) medical evacuation transports by this ship. Padme Amidala is taken hostage on this ship, but is subsequently rescued by Anakin Skywalker shortly before its destruction. This ship's ion cannon was capable of disabling several capital ships simultaneously. For 10 points, name this Subjugator-class Separatist ship featured in three early episodes and episode titles of Star Wars: The Clone Wars.

ANSWER: the Malevolence

6. These creatures are natives of the planet Gentes, in the notably desolate Anoat system. General Grievous invaded Gentes and took this entire race prisoner during the Clone Wars. Ecclessis Figg once recruited these creatures to build a mining facility on a system close to their homeworld. One of these creatures named (*) Melch has partnered with Hondo Ohnaka on several missions, including capturing several Y-wings from Reklam Station and retrieving treasure from a disabled cargo ship above WYNkahthu. For 10 points, name these pig-like, dwarf-sized creatures who dismembered C-3PO in Cloud City and operated the carbon-freezing facilities once used on Han Solo.

ANSWER: Ugnaughts

7. Whale-like creatures called purrgil were the inspiration for the first mechanized versions of this technology. These things are graded on a class scale in which lower class numbers mean better systems. Interdictor cruisers were designed to counteract these things. They aren't skyhoppers, but the T-14 type of these things was designed by the (*) Nubians. The TIE Advanced X1 fighter built specially for Darth Vader was equipped with one of these, which came in handy after the Battle of Yavin. For 10 points, name this shipboard component that frequently failed on the Millennium Falcon, but when functional allowed it to make the Kessel Run in less than twelve parsecs.

ANSWER: hyperdrives

8. Before holding his more famous command, this person was in charge of Rapier Squadron. This person rescued C-3PO after the mission which necessitated the replacement of the protocol droid's original gold arm with a red one, and was later sent to find (*) Lor San Tekka. This man led a squadron at the Battle of Takodana, in which he piloted the Black One against First Order forces. This character's sexual orientation was the target of much speculation after his first film appearance. For 10 points, identify this Resistance pilot who led the successful attack on Starkiller Base.

ANSWER: Poe Dameron

9. He's not Han Solo, but this Corellian actually herded nerfs in his youth. This person, along with Derek "Hobbie" Klivian, successfully defected from Skystrike Academy. Colin Higgins notably couldn't remember his lines for this character, causing him to be replaced in all but one scene. (*) Wes Janson was his gunner during one battle with Rogue Squadron, which this man co-founded with Luke Skywalker; during that battle, the two of them successfully took down an Imperial walker with a tow cable. For 10 points, name this Red Two from the Battle of Yavin and Red Leader from the Battle of the Forest Moon of Endor who apologized to Luke after being forced to pull out of a Death Star trench run.

ANSWER: Wedge Antilles [prompt on just "Antilles"]

10. One of these things tells Obi-Wan Kenobi and Bail Organa that "we don't know why" before advising a course of action, which another of these things assists with moments later. Another of these things implodes shortly after one character asks, "Is she safe? Is she all right?" One of these things once pressed a small cylinder to the side of a large tank (*), causing its occupant to drift upward. Later, another one of these poked a few fingers of that same occupant, inducing reflexive muscle contractions, before closing up the external covering of a prosthesis. For 10 points, identify these machines that treat facial slashes, missing extremities, and all other wounds in organic patients.

ANSWER: medical droids