

The Ass Dan Memorial SNL Packet
Tossups by Mike Cheyne and Seth Meyers

1. This character packs a blacklight to inspect his hotel mattress for human stains. He has frequent urination problems and notes that they could have used all the food at the wedding at the Superdome. His theme song says he provides “an earful of bleak facts” and like his female counterpart, he is very concerned about feline AIDS. For 10 points, name this Steve Carell played man who eventually dates Debbie Downer.

ANSWER: Bob Bummer

2. After this event occurred, a character named Beth notes “You’re in my heart, babe. You’re in my heart.” It occurs shortly after an ashtray full of cigarette butts is thrown at Dawn and after it happened, the actress playing Dawn notably puffed her cheeks in embarrassment. This occurred in the sketch Biker Chick Chat, which involved numerous usages of the word “frickin.” For 10 points, name this event which got Jenny Slate’s SNL tenure off to a bad start, in which she said a profanity on air.

ANSWER: Jenny Slate saying fucking

3. This show’s theme song proclaims “I go from town to town, empty cups in my way.” In one scene, the host anxiously shouts “I’ve abandoned my child! I’ve abandoned my boy!” In the only episode of this show, the guest is Anton Chigurh, although Juno is the guest for next week. It is hosted by an oil man alongside his son H.W. and presumably each episode features the host taking out a really big straw to reach across the room and perform the title action. For 10 points, name this fictional food show hosted by Daniel Plainview, in which he enjoys consuming other peoples’ cold drinks.

ANSWER: I Drink Your Milkshake!

4. In an Internet-only clip, this man recites the names and birthdays of the U.S. Presidents. In real life, this person thought his appearances on the show were “perplexing” and “obscure,” but noted they got his wardrobe right. In an episode featuring Paul Simon, Simon speaks up for him and introduces a supposed “twin” of this man. At the end of all his appearances, he seems unhappy until he grins at a joking DeAndre Cole. For 10 points, name this man who is always the third guest that is bumped on What Up with That, the real life guitarist of Fleetwood Mac.

ANSWER: Lindsey Buckingham

5. A character in a sketch set in this location has seen Bigfoot twice and once chewed his dentist’s foot off with his teeth. It is where a character describes being crushed by a box of dictionaries and about being rescued from Peru by Celine Dion. In the best known line in a sketch set here, a character responds to the line “Don’t worry, be happy” with “Bobby McFerrin raped my grandmother!” For 10 points, name this location, the setting of a sketch where Alec Baldwin and Kristen Wiig exchange bizarre revelations on a morning commute.

ANSWER: car

6. This character is introduced in a flashback puffing on a Cheeba and telling someone to prove his fandom. This character is described as “America’s sweetheart” and has “big, broad shoulders and a red-ass weave,” as well as a penis. In reality, he is a man who found a red wig in a dumpster. For 10 points, name this Kenan Thompson played person, supposedly the “Queen of Country” in a short about “her” affair with Andy Samberg.

ANSWER: The Reba McEntire Impersonator

7. Name or description okay. In a theme song, this character is said to “get all kinds of poontang.” He says the favorite thing about a woman is the vagina and recites Leviticus 18:22. This character shockingly owns anal lubricant and a dildo. In his last appearance, he vomits all over the Kristen Wiig played Vicky, which is followed by an angel dust production lab exploding. Much to his father’s dismay, this character is gay. For 10 points, name this Shia LaBeouf played character, the relation of a Will Forte played inept bomb defuser.

ANSWER: Merrill or MacGruber’s son

8. At the end of a sketch about one of these objects, a character leaves with his “hemorrhoid donut.” That sketch features someone shrieking “You will never drink Tang!” These objects are left alone with a man while someone goes to retrieve the “space test.” Mr. Aymong ends up “returning” this object to Mr. Greenblatt by vomiting it into Greenblatt’s hand. Greenblatt immediately realizes that Aymong stole one of these thirty-five objects. For 10 points, name this food item eaten by a Jason Sudeikis played character in a very weird sketch.

ANSWER: potato chip

9. In one appearance, this character reveals his DVD box set is a 20 hour, 8-disc collection of pornography. He is always introduced by a montage featuring Brian Austin Green and ALF. He first appeared as a hotel owner in an episode hosted by Catherine Zeta-Jones, and his son wears a sailor’s suit and is played by Bobby Moynihan. This man’s director is always seen smoking and eating pasta. For 10 points, name this Bill Hader played character, the fast-talking host of La Rivista della Televisione.

ANSWER: Vinny Vedecci

10. Description acceptable. Immediately before this film is screened, its director notes another of his works was inspired by Three Amigos! When one character makes her first appearance, she proclaims “believe it or not.” At the end of this film, a character uses the power of “nature,” and the director pronounces the scene with “bats” as “game changing.” Characters continually use the phrase “kemo sabe,” including Spaceship and Nitro. It features Sigourney Weaver reprising her role as Ripley. For 10 points, name this entry in a sci-fi series about feline weapons, this one directed by the maker of Avatar.

ANSWER: Laser Cats V [or James Cameron’s Laser Cats]

11. In a sketch about this activity, characters note that on the holiday of Chi Chi Mon Greenus you study spelling. In that sketch about this, a character claims “boys and girls swimming together” caused World War I, and that the last war fought on international soil was the “dinosaur/caveman war.” This activity is the focus of a sketch featuring

Michael Phelps from the Brethren of Ezekiel Compound. For 10 points, name this activity that pits Richmond High against home schoolers in a lame sketch, and which is also played by Aauroni Gupta.

ANSWER: quizbowl

12. This character proclaims that “all of the kids love the robot voice” and his representative says that he puts it down for the streets, meaning cul-de-sacs. This character’s mother is played by a cross-dressing Robert De Niro and he is represented by Ted Jankaloff, played by Tim McGraw. He is inexplicably beloved by Ludacris, who believes him to be superior to T-Pain. For 10 points, name this Andy Samberg played singer who begins his songs by shouting “RAP SONG, RAP SONG.”

ANSWER: Blizzard Man

13. This man says that since he is a churchgoer, he will not break someone else’s “big, beautiful nose.” He proclaims “we’re going to hug it out, bitch!” after encountering someone who did an unflattering impression of him. This man asks such questions as “Did you see The Perfect Storm?” and he reminds people that he produces Entourage. He ends most of his communications with the phrase “Say hi to your mother for me.” For 10 points, name this actor who “talks to animals” in a sketch.

ANSWER: Mark Wahlberg

14. In this man’s first appearance, he describes something called “Brishov Nishnak,” saying he learned it in his school of him and two other guys. He is asked if he ever feels like his hands are made of sand, and he himself asks how long he has to tug on a cord before something happens. This character frequently reacts with anger at the shortness of his sponsor’s commercials, like one featuring Marilyn Monroe for Asbestos. He usually has a stuffed raven on his shoulder and is annoyed at the sexual activities of guests like Liberace. For 10 points, name this Bill Hader played character, a real-life horror actor who hosts terrible holiday specials.

ANSWER: Vincent Price

15. This character’s great grandfather was named E.T. and his mother was of French Canadian descent. He is concerned about plugging up potholes and for “licking the crack” problem in his hometown. At the end of the sketch, he announces he is changing his name to “Deldeaux” before realizing what that means. For 10 points, name this unfortunately named Jon Hamm played political candidate who is running for City Councilman of Butts, New York.

ANSWER: Pat Finger [or Pat Deldeaux]

16. This character has no name. This man is told by Wally that he would prefer to bake snickerdoodles and French-kiss his French-kissing puppet. He says he soils his pants every day and sets up his most famous actions by referencing his father fighting in Inchon and John Wooden. His two appearances have featured him doing something to the tunes of “Fancy Pants” and “Casino Royale,” alongside Michael Phelps and Peyton Manning. For 10 points, name this Will Forte character that tries to motivate young people through crazy dancing.

ANSWER: coach

17. This person learned that George Orwell's real name was Eric Blair during his senior year in Cornell. The equipment manager for the cross country team, he denounces a "feline genocide" inflicted on his cat, Miss Precious Perfect. This man at one point mugs to the camera when screaming "HOW MUCH IS HALLIBURTON PAYING YOU? I HOPE IT'S NOT PAYING YOU IN OIL!" He names "McCain campaign butt boy" Richard Wolffe, the "Worst Person in the World." For 10 points, name this man played by Ben Affleck as a dictatorial liberal host of the show Countdown.

ANSWER: Keith Olbermann

18. A sketch set in this location features a character who rode a talking moose to work and who tells someone to put the cocoa down. A character here shows off a new line of power tools and is named Winter's Breath. The most famous incident here is when a speaker says "Always be closing" instead of "Always be cobbling" during his lecture. For 10 points, name this location where an Alec Baldwin played elf arrives to lecture the troops.

ANSWER: Santa's workshop

19. For some reason, United Airlines showed this sketch during my 2008 flight home to Grand Rapids, although watching it multiple times helped me get a buzz at 2009 CO Trash. An audience member can be audibly heard screaming "oh my God!" shortly after the Bobby Moynihan character says he's "warmed up like biscuits." The musical guest appears in this sketch and says "hell, no" to her fictional director's request. At the end of this sketch, it is revealed that three of the characters are the Paul Rudd character's stepsons. It is best known for having Justin Timberlake continually stating "We're the dancers" to a confused singer. For 10 points, name this sketch involving male backups appearing a Beyonce music video.

ANSWER: The "Single Ladies" sketch

20. This song is played after Eric rushes in, noting he has "just thought of the funniest thing." It's played after Keith explains that he hasn't seen a sibling in years, and after two cops read a description of the scene at the end of the sketch. This song plays during the SNL sketch known as "Dear Sister," referencing a humorous scene on The OC. For 10 points, name this Imogen Heap song played during a digital short involving multiple shootings, whose most famous lyric is "Mmmm, what you say?"

ANSWER: "Hide and Seek"

21. In this character's first appearance, he notes that "chestnuts are roasting, as they say." He stole Uncle Joey's watch, and his cousin Earl died in a water-taxi accident. Debbie Turner wrote Living with the Devil about this man, who quotes "the black singer" Usher to romance her back. He usually appears in sketches involving a Jason Sudeikis played MC in which he grabs a microphone to rant about black people. For 10 points, name this Will Forte played character, an albino who hates Obama.

ANSWER: Hamilton

22. In one scene in this sketch, characters attack a man dressed as a Quaker, while it ends with someone dreaming about Daily Show reruns. In another scene, characters rearrange a decoration to make it resemble the cast of Seinfeld. During it, the title group cranks Barbra Streisand and attends Fiddler on the Roof. The basic point of this sketch is that “the streets are deserted,” so the title group controls the town. For 10 points, name this TV Funhouse sketch in which Darlene Love sings about the holiday activities of certain non-Christians.

ANSWER: “Christmastime for the Jews”

23. A member of this group writes the essay “No Gymnastics Island,” while another notes typographical errors in a book about Margaret Doublecracker landing on Giraffe Island. The most notable members of this group are Liam, who hates his stepfather, and Sam, who bizarrely always has his hands in two casts. These characters do little, but are frequently interrogated by the Will Forte played Mr. Dillon about their potential crimes. For 10 points, name this group of people who are usually seen in a classroom with a violent Kristen Wiig played youngster.

ANSWER: classmates of Gilly

24. In a scene in this sketch, a character looks at the camera and says “I’m trippin,’ too.” Characters in it attend the zoo and laugh at the things animals do. At the end, a character notes “you’re in New York now, baby.” A character offers to be someone’s Jim Caviezel and compares a man to a “very hairy Jake Gyllenhaal.” This short is best remembered for a sudden appearance by Adam Levine to sing the chorus. For 10 points, name this digital short about a man lusting after Mahmoud Ahmadinejad.

ANSWER: Iran So Far

25. This product is opened shortly after a conversation about the ‘80s wanting their hair back. A character says there is always time for this product before a room explodes. In a sketch about an Italian Mafia hideout exploding, this is the only word spoken by the protagonist, annoying a Richard Dean Anderson played character. This is the only drink a character would “pour into his mouth hole,” and that man legally changes his name to a variant of it. For 10 points, name this drink, which becomes the corporate sponsor of MacGruber.

ANSWER: Pepsi

26. This character has one brown eye and one milky white eye. He wears two suits of clothes—one for winter, and one for funerals. Said to be a pile of sticks someone put an old coat on, he has a beard that covers various malformed patches. This character is the most eligible bachelor in Upper Cornholshire and his traits are described by three excited sisters. For 10 points, name this title character of the “lost Jane Austen work,” although he is also a real character from Sense and Sensibility.

ANSWER: Mr. Willoughby

27. This man’s theme song proclaims “watch out, bad guys” and that he’s “kickin’ and a punchin.” Bono says this man is way cooler than him, and he works out by standing on a treadmill in roller skates. He throws pennies out of the window to annoy Matt Lauer, and his morning routine involves standing outside 30 Rock until he is recognized, although in the sketch, someone confuses him for Stone Phillips. For 10 points, name this man, the host of NBC Nightly News.

ANSWER: Brian Williams

28. On this man's first day on the job, he spells chili all over his shirt and is unable to find the bathroom. In a sketch focusing on him, a character says that she likes Obama because he's Hawaiian to cover up saying the phrase "mama like." This man is compared to Douglas Fairbanks at one point. He is dressed as a flapper when fantasized by Robert Byrd and as a construction worker when thought of by Barney Frank. For 10 points, name this Jon Hamm played man lusted after by various Democratic politicians, who is a former Massachusetts Senator.

ANSWER: Scott Brown

29. A short-lived member of this group proposes they change their names to get free donuts. In another sketch, they sing about rocking on SNL—Valentine's Day—2009 in their song "Ask the Wizard." This group acquired their powers from a wizard played by Bill Hader. In one sketch, Alec Baldwin is their fourth member, Gary, while in another, Andy Samberg discovers they are immortal after once performing as Property of the Queen in the 1980's. For 10 points, name this musical group consisting of Kevin, Nick, and Joe.

ANSWER: The Jonas Brothers

30. At one point on this show, a character offers up the quote that something is "a lot of fun." It featured someone offering a theory of what Best Buy plays on television to show how good the picture is. Contestants describe a reality show about sunglasses and a sexy doctor who can start fires with his mind. At the end of the episode we see, the Ashton Kutcher character correctly answers the title query by saying it takes place in Miami. For 10 points, name this fictional game show where people try to figure out what a certain USA Network show is about.

ANSWER: What Is Burn Notice?

31. A person in this location tells a story about being asked "Do you like money?" at a party, followed by the questioner's eyes turning black. Evening shows here feature ventriloquism and a one-man show about William Faulkner. At this location, a man sings the jingle "grab your fork, and pop the cork, it's time for your mouth to celebrate." This place serves fine pork dishes and champagne. For 10 points, name this restaurant run by the star of Mad Men and a singer.

ANSWER: Hamm and Buble [pronounced "Bubbly"]

32. This film is thirty-eight minutes long, with ten minutes of it being a close-up of a TV showing Braveheart. Filmed in Thailand, it ends with a character shouting "reach for the stars." Its ending and various other scenes feature a memorial to all of the animals who died playing the title role, all set to the song "Life is a Highway." It was made by the director of Scuba Pig. For 10 points, name this fictional film directed by a Tracy Morgan character, whose tagline is "Houston, we have a dog!"

ANSWER: Rocket Dog

33. This character went to high school in Salt Lake City, and his mascot was the Pleasant Valley Beavers. In a sketch focusing on him, a man tells a black girl with a mustache that she looks like Beyonce. He tells Redsin Bonure he hopes he dies tonight, and his real name is Tarkey Fensington. Made by ZipCo, his first appearance features a character screaming “LOOSE PEANUT BUTTER! PIE! PIE! PIE! PIE!” as things are thrown at this man. For 10 points, name this character, played by Will Forte wearing an all blue bodysuit, who helps maintain a tidy storage room.

ANSWER: Closet Organizer [or Tarkey Fensington before mentioned]

34. This group is described as “positive guys from San Jose who are trying to have some fun.” They recorded a song that plays in the bathroom of a Baja Fresh and is the ringtone of a Nasim Pedrad’s character’s cousin. This group is described as playing “beach rock” and its most famous song is confused by a father for a Third Eye Blind song. It appears constantly in a girl’s closet at night, singing its annoying hit song. For 10 points, name this band which sings “All Star.”

ANSWER: Smash Mouth

35. Anthony Ableton asks “are you for real” when invited to see this movie. It was promoted with a “snack pack” of 2 for 1 pizzas from Pizza Hut. This film stars Helen Mirren, who tells one of the title entities “you’re off the case.” A man trying to use his phone to call the police is stymied by constant advertisements for this film, although one of the title animals does eventually attack burglars. For 10 points, name this fictional film about helpful canines.

ANSWER: Rescue Dogs 3D

36. A contestant on this show plays for the Hope Foundation which raises hope. It featured a MC Skat Kat reference in its second appearance on SNL. A Paul Rudd played contestant asks “what the hell kind of show is this?” when confronted by his doorman. On a celebrity edition of this show, Lady Gaga excels, but Justin Timberlake cannot recognize Chris Kirkpatrick. On one episode, a man uses the answer “Josh” multiple times, but fails in the second time when the answer is “Norman.” For 10 points, name this game show in which people try to remember what their subordinates are called.

ANSWER: What’s That Name?

37. This character wears a shirt reading “Kiss me, I’m real.” It exercises using an elliptical machine and tries to transfer a cake to a different table. It ends the sketch by coming out of the rain after saying he was “freezing his balls” outside. He continually strikes a frightening pose, including once with Pearl Jam. This thing continually alarms a Jude Law played man as a vehicle goes through a storm. For 10 points, name this thing which appears on the wing of an airplane in a parody of a famous Twilight Zone sketch.

ANSWER: Gremlin

38. This song hit the Top 200 on the Minnesota radio charts and it is sung at the Target Center at a “lightly attended” event. The story behind this song involves a woman one of the singers was interested in, who actually never received the title object. After saying the title, the singers, played by Fred Armisen and Bryan Cranston, always say “Did you get it?”, which is apparently the only lyric to the song For 10 points, name this hit song by the Bjelland Brothers about sending a particular beverage to someone’s house.

ANSWER: “I sent a bottle of sparkling apple juice to your house”

39. This character wears a Ronald Reagan mask when pulling back a shower curtain and he describes peeing into a cardboard birthday hat. A New York Health Board requires him to say his opinions are “farcical.” This character hosts events at places like an Econo Lodge and a La Quinta in Rochester. He makes coupons that say things like “You Can Go To Town on Me.” This man hosts symposiums featuring such guests as the Erotic Chef. For 10 points, name this Paul Brittain played character, an amateur expert on lovemaking.

ANSWER: “Sex” Ed Vincent

40. This man has written the book Mac for Dummies. He asks the audience twice if they have “buckled up” and at one point, excitedly notes that he didn’t see something coming while reading a novel. This man has written such books as The Pokemon Directive and The Marmaduke Betrayal. For 10 points, name this Robert De Niro played author of books like The Abacus Conundrum.

ANSWER: Harlan Kane

41. According to a Sex in the City Facebook app, this man is a “Samantha.” He complains that the police don’t go after Ben Roethlisberger and he says he will change Angry Birds to “Good Natured Birds.” He always notes that if he dies, even if it’s suicide, it was murder. This character always interrupts a speech given by someone else, such as Mark Zuckerberg, and in one appearance he hosts a TMZ-type show. He usually drinks tea or brandy while laughing about how he will disrupt online communications. For 10 points, name this man played by Bill Hader, the founder of WikiLeaks.

ANSWER: Julian Assange

42. The host of this show notes that it’s “a smart game.” The Alec Baldwin character wins $600,000 on this show but then chooses to “lose it all.” After hearing the rules of this show, the Jason Sudeikis character walks off immediately. It ends with a lightning round in which the contestant must organize the cast of Entourage and he does so, by saying Scott Caan watches and Turtle is on the bottom. For 10 points, name this game show in which people guess who takes a particular position during sex.

ANSWER: Who’s On Top?

43. This film features a character apparently named Gypsy or Crispy and its plot seems to involve “a lot of killing over a very small amount of money.” The protagonist is recently released convict Terry Donovan, who is given orders by a bald gangster holding a pit bull. Directed by the man who helmed Easy Around the Bend, reviewers note they didn’t hear a single consonant and asked for subtitles to be turned on. For 10 points, name this incomprehensible British film.

ANSWER: Don’t You Go Rounin’ Roun to Re Ro

44. In this work, a character states “black card at the bar like I gives a fuck.” A character in this song says “motherfucking ice-man, I’m the top gunner,” while another says he is “Mr. Take You Home and Fuck You Twice Guy.” At one point, Akiva tells one of the singers they need him to focus up. A character in this song has a “basehead wife” whose womb is polluted. This work ends with the singer shifting to singing about Forrest Gump and Scarface. For 10 points, name this digital short where Michael Bolton sings about a Pirates of the Caribbean character.

ANSWER: Jack Sparrow

45. In a sketch involving this song, a character takes a digital photo of herself, while another thinks of her parakeets. This song plays in a sketch where a TGI Friday’s wings special ends prematurely early and where a Nasim Pedrad character eats pints of Ben’s and Jerry’s ice cream. A sketch ends with two window washers joining the group singing this and the members of Coldplay also emotionally reacting. For 10 points, name this song that causes uncontrollable crying in people, a hit by Adele.

ANSWER: “Someone Like You”

46. This character doesn’t wash his hands for a week, disgusting a man named Dautz. His imaginary alter ego has such friends as Brett Favre and Chewbacca and is the subject of a song and various novels where he has a million friends. This character lives with his mother and has never had a girlfriend and also offers to shave his mustache at one point. Brent Harrison says this man is not the face of what NAMBLA should be. For 10 points, name this Steve Buscemi played basketball coach who is NOT a pedophile.

ANSWER: Coach Bert

47. Characters who work in this city include Illiterate Lisa and Busty Rhymes. A recurring line spoken by characters in this city is “It’s cold as hell” and “it’s five o’ clock in the morning.” When a sketch set in this city first aired, many IRC commentators noted the similarity to it and Charlie Rosenthal’s life. This is where Richard and the Buffalo host a hip-hop morning show with a woman they call MC Jigglebutt. For 10 points, name this Minnesota city, the site of the B-108 sketches.

ANSWER: Shakopee

48. While singing this song, one man accosts another as a “nut stealer,” and reacts to someone else referencing “99 Problems” by saying “it’s a rapster reference.” In between singing this song, a woman performs the “Newsweek face” and a man orders a napkin. Rick Perry does not know the lyrics to it, and various people sing it after proclaiming they were once the front-runners. This song is sung in a sketch by Republican candidates thinking back to the primary season. For 10 points, name this Green Day song that celebrates past events.

ANSWER: “(Good Riddance) Time of Your Life”

49. A member of this group was reportedly “named in a big ‘ol hurry.” A Cecily Strong character asks “what’s confusing?” about this group, while a Taran Killam character reacts to them by saying he couldn’t get a boner if he tried. Lyrics to their songs include “let’s have sex like crazy” and “I’m going to listen inside your butt.” Their hit songs include “Please Explain What We Do Now That We’re Naked” and “Where Does My Penis Go? Point to Where.” For 10 points, name this musical group consisting of two black brothers and a white one, played by Christoph Waltz.

ANSWER: The JaMarcus Brothers

50. In one scene in this work, characters order eggs Benedict with no yolk for “less calories.” A character is named “Young Sandwich” and is still waiting on a fucking YouTube check. Characters in this work shout “THAT’S SO RAVEN” and take more shots in the theater than John Wilkes Booth. At the end of it, the singer notes he “honed his fake rap penmanship” on the streets of New York. The protagonists of this work plan to watch Sister Act on Broadway. For 10 points, name this last digital short filmed while Andy Samberg was a regular, a sequel to an earlier one also featuring Chris Parnell.

ANSWER: Lazy Sunday 2

51. At the end of this sketch, a man asks the title character “so no one’s shot you yet?” A character in this sketch says “hard to be you” as he leaves a bar before saying the title character will pay for everyone. The title character has no black friends and is congratulated for getting Mr. Jones a new job shoveling shit. Like the show it parodies, it features its star eating food awkwardly while a man walking by flips off the camera. Its first assistant director in the credits is Hannibal Hamlin. For 10 points, name this Louis C.K. short which features him as an U.S. president.

ANSWER: Lincoln

52. A character talking about these objects is said to be “dead behind those eyes.” They are first mentioned after a dunk in basketball and after they are mentioned again, another character says “I just lost my mom, man!” They are made by Zappy. The second mention of these objects occurs at a funeral for the Tim Robinson played character’s mother. A Kevin Hart played character cannot understand what these things are. For 10 points, name this cool article of clothing that’s not a b, c, d, e, f, g, h, i, or j.

ANSWER: Z-Shirts

53. After a character on this show says “If I told you, it wouldn’t be a secret,” the title character laughs ridiculously. Music on it includes Al Jolson and a Vanessa Bayer character says it “looks stupid” before getting a plant thrown at her. The host to this show is unable to blink. The theme song to this show plays behind a bouncing image of the title character’s head. It features a clip from It’s Showtime at the Apollo to represent the audience laughing at a joke. Its first and only guest is Jon Hamm, as seen in the second segment which featured the strange editing choices its host wanted. For 10 points, name this fictional public access show created by a strange Zach Galifianakis character.

ANSWER: Darrell’s House

54. This song evolved out of a poem and its existence is justified as helping blind people. After it is criticized, a Jason Sudeikis character shouts “You guys stink! And this network is a dump!” After a performance of this song, a Vince Vaughn played character asks “why did you bring little hammers and a can of gasoline?” This song is performed by Dave and John Tesh, with stupid lyrics like “buh-buh-buh-buh basketball, give me the ball because I'm going to DUNK IT!" For 10 points, name this song that accompanies basketball on a certain network.

ANSWER: "Roundball Rock" [or the "NBA on NBC" theme]

55. After this man is shot, his apparent killer says "if anyone has a problem with what just happened, say it now," although this man is seen at the end of the sketch running after the other characters. That shooter is Zoot. He is shot immediately after noting "there once was a bus full of creatures." This man apparently plays the policeman who confronts the Muppets after they run over a pedestrian on their bus. For 10 points, name this comedian noted for his poetry that he displayed on stuff like Match Game.

ANSWER: Nipsey Russell